Mr. Lawson once pursued "The System" tenaciously through 49 or 99 magazine in-Put him in the witness box, and Congress proclamation proceeds as follows: can present a 999 reel movie which will last uninterruptedly until noon of March 4.

Meanwhile, goodby to the real tasks of the session! The House Committee on Military Affairs passed unostentatiously last Friday a resolution declaring that no radical change of military policy should be considered in framing this session's army appropriation bill. This means that nothing will be done to repair the blunders of the Hay army reorganization measure-a measure whose complete failure-so far as the federalization of the state militia is concerned-was demonstrated by the recent mobilization on the Mexican border. Congress will simply shut its eyes to the facts and let the country muddle along for another year with its present grotesque military system.

So it will be, doubtless, with the railroad bills. President Wilson urged Congress to pass a measure partially protecting the country against nation-wide railroad strikes, by forbidding strikes without notice. Mr. Adamson, the author of the Adamson law, promised at the be ginning of the session to pass such a bill. But there are no signs now that Congress will redeem that promise. Mr. Gompers and the leaders of the four railroad brotherhoods are against strike prevention of any sort. It is more comfortable, therefore, for Congress to sit tight and do

That being the situation, Lawson is a real lifeline. If he starts under Congressional auspices another great "Everybody's Magazine" serial, nothing short of an adjournment sine die can stop him. Listening enraptured to him, Congress can stall on to its heart's content.

Liquor Reform in England

The people of Great Britain are by now more or less resigned to the prospect of more rigid regulation of the traffic in liquor. It is bound to come, and the only doubtful point is what form it will take or to what degree the government will venture to interfere with the habits of the

Every one recognizes that it is no longer about a radical reform—and failed. To-day it is a question that concerns the food supply of the country, and in all probability the brewers will be hard hit.
